DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For Congress,

JAMES B. MCCREARY. Of Madtson.

THE anti prohibition epeakers make great mistake in trying to defend the nee of the self evident fact that the excessive use has it been almost devastated by fire, is raining lives, destroying homes and bringing shame, orline and misery not only upon ful cyclone swept it in August of last year mpon the unfortunate once entructed to their care and dependent upon them for World. comfort and support. They ought also to admit that temperance is a blessing as much to be commended as the caree of atrong drink is to be condemned. The issue is not whether temperance is or is not a good thing, greatly to be sought, but whether prohibition is the best and surest men. mer of deeling with an evil that all moral men admit is a blighting one. That is the only question to be argued and really the only one to be decided and the anti-prohibitlonist should pin their opponents in speech to this simple proposition and not allow them to monopolize the sympathies of their audiences by their appeals to the centimental nature.

It is the sheerest nonsense and the most inexcusable of foilee to attempt to defend that which is indefensible-the intemperate use of liquor. It can not be successfully done and he who attampts it gets only censure for hie pains. There is a question however whether prohibition will prove the cure-ail for the evil and it should be discussed and decided calmly and dispassionately. Many good people go off half cocked whose observation has taught them that it matter of policy. They are as honest in their helief as the prohibitionists and ought not to be classed as whisky men because they can not see as well as their wiser brethren. In this free country a men has the right to think and act as he pleases, provided he does not piesse to interfere with the privileges of others, and we for one shall altar. not fall ont with him for exercising that right. If prohibition carries, as we are inclined to think it will, no one will strive harder to have it strictly enforced than we and the sdvocates may count on our warmeet support. In the meantime we are not eatiefied that it is the true policy to adopt, We are uncompromisingly against whisky but since experience shows that it will be sold, we believe in making it pay its part to the enpport of the government. If a mejority think otherwise, however, and adopt the law, we shall, as we do all others upon the statute book, urge its etrict enforcement.

Another earthquake shook terroretricken Charleston Friday night, adding to the work of destruction and running up the long list of killed and wounded, which now number 63 and over 100 respectively. Two thirds of the buildings of the cityespecially those of brick-are either in ruins or are demaged to such an extent that they will have to be rehuilt or repaired. The loss to the city is estimated at $10,000,000, and there is a proposition to call upon the Government for loan of that amount to aid in the prosecution of the work of repairing the damage. For several days and nights thousands of people eought safety in the the parks and open spaces of the city, festing to return to their devastated houses and a feeling of panic seemed to possess them. The scenes of ized. #### THE PROHIBITION CRUSADE.

In the American constitutional system the soveraign of the State is monifested by the exarcise of the right (1) of Eminent Domain; (2) by the right to impose taxee: (3) by the exercise of Police Power. By virtua of the power first named, private property may be taken for public use, end public use only, upon just compensation For instance, the land of the citizen may be laken for the construction of railways, turnpikee, ferries, forts, arsenais and for such other things of which it can be said the use is public. Under the second named power the citizen ie required to pay to the government a fixed tribute in consideration of the protection which the government, through its official channels, extends to him in the enjoyment of his life, his liberty and his property. Under the third named power cailed indifferently the police power of the State and the public police and economy, systems of rules are prescribed having in view the due regulation and the domestic order of the State, by which the inhabitants are bound to conform their general behavior to those rnles of propriety and good neighborhood which are calculated to prevent a conflict of rights and to insure to each the uninterrupted enjoyment of his

If a law problhiting absolutaly the sala of epirituous liquor is defensible upon constitutional grounds, it is because it fella within the ecope of the exercise, by the State, of its police power.

I affirm, let, that such laws can not constitutionally be made, by which I mean to eay that the police power, working through the channels of legitimate legislation, can not reach out and take absolute and unqualified control of any article of traffic which may have a use not necessarily and unquelifiedly pernicions. I affirm, secondly, that if absolute prohibitory laws are not open to the objection named, they are still nnwise, viewed from a moral point of observation; in conflict with the rules of politicsi economy and destructive of the end (temperance) which is professedly the object of this enactment.

All legislation, affecting or otherwise reiating to crimes and miedsmesnore, is enacted by virtue of the police power of a government. The history of such legislation shows that it is limited to the restraint and in the punishment of ABUSES. The USE of property (and I employ the word in THE London Echo anggests Gen. W. J. a sense contradistinguished from abuse) is Landram as the republican candidate not and can not be interfered with by sny against Gov. McCreary. And this brings us directly back to the original proposition, that constitutional legislation in such cases must concern itself with abuses exclusively. The exercise of my rights over my property in such manner as that I do not injure the rights of my -Only two or three people up here feit neighbor, is a legitimate use of property. This is secured to me by the fundamental law. For my protection in the enjoyment of this right, I pay tax to the government. The exercise of my rights over my properdroven. Geo. But it is possible that the nee on a crowded highway, to the great denger of the public. For this abuse, the highway. But one would scarcely suppose that the Legiciature or "even the largest majority" could legally require the owner to kill his herse or to keep him in his own enclosure, because of the liability to the once. Those whose terms expire expect to abuse! Property in Railroads 18 growing common. The use is largely beneficial to mankind. But eyen this cheracter of property may he diverted, by the method of gravest ahnses. The live stock of the proprietors of the land through which they rnn, may be recklessly killed; the lives of heard to say that legislation should either prevent, restrain or retard the use because of the liability to, and frequent occurrence of, the abuse? Illustrations might be multipiled indefinitely! These are sufficient for the purpose-to point out the distinction, wide and radical, between use and shuse, and to show further that the proy-Il que et semperable and bestiefholdle

The clover we analyze this queetlon, the more clearly will the soundness of these views appear. Loysity to government is the duty of the citizen. The political antithesis to this virtue is Tresson. Tresson is forbidden and is punished, becanse it is an abuse both of the duty of the sublect and of the privilege which ha enjoys. Homicide may not only be a lawful thing, hut may be a proper thing to do. The sheriff kills a man, by hanging, in obedience to the mandate of a court. This is justifiable. One men slays another in the necessary defense of own life. This is excueable. But murder, which is the iegal and moral antithesis to justifishie killing, is forbidden and punished. Why? Because it is the abuse of the right one man has, under given circumetances, to take the life of another! The acquisition of property is both sanctioned and encouraged by law. The abuse of the right to sepaire is found in robbery, embezzlement, larceny and kindred crimes. Hence the taw forbide and punishes tha man who is guilty of these abusee! The mannfacture, the ownership and the bearing of deadly weapone is allowed by law. Says the Constitution: "The right of the citizene to bear arms in dafence of themselves and the State shall not be questloned." But there may be an abuse of this privilege, and so the legislature has forhidden the carrying of such weapons concealed.

Playing at carde is deemed by law to be an innocent amusement, but ayen this sportive game is liable to abuse, and so legislation has been directed to the prevention of the shuse hy forbidding that bets of money or property shall be laid upon the game.

I might thus run through the whole criminal cods, and show that whenever the law interfare with the conduct of the cltizen, elther in respect to his own individual dameanor or la respect to his control and disposition of property, such interference does not touch the use, but is limited to the prohibition and the punishment of the abuse.

Now is any one foolish or fanatical enough to deny that spirituous, vinous and mait liquors all have their uses? Uses, too, which may be properly regarded as necessities! Euch one of these liquors is need in cases of sickness upon the prescription of the most eminent physicians of the medical profession. One of tham is used for church purposes upon sacramental accasions. Most of tham are used is the very highest works of art and ecience-in mechanical operations, in chemical analyses, and in other and various departments of industry. As a bevarage, used in moderation, the opinion of mankind may be divided as to whether they are healthful or deleterious. The same diversity of opinion exists as to coffee, tea and tobacco. There are not wanting skilled scientists who affirm that the nicotine of tobacco, the caffe ire of coffee, the tanin of tea and the aicohol of liquor are all kindred poisons, which are preindicial to robust physical and mental davelopment, while others contend that the stimulating principles of these various articles, at isast retard the waste of the human system, which results from the physical and mental exercise.

Leaving this issue to be discussed by men of science, one thing must stand confessed

that in the opinion of mankind in general, spiritnous, vincus and melt liquore have a nee, whether it he one of necessity or luxury. That this issue whether it be sacramental, mechanical, chemical, medicinal. luxurious or needfui, can not iawfully be restrained by government is the proposition I affirm; but that the abuse which reaulta in drunkenness and debauchery may be prohibited and ought to be punished, is affirmed with equal eincerity, and no less the legel rights of my neighbor, is an abuse candor. With what force of ressoning, I then is quire, can any advocate of prohibition contend for the ensetment of such legislation as will not simply restrain, but which will absolutely deatroy a use (that is the case of liquor for any purpose) which is not of itself perniclons. The mere sale of liquor injures no one, unless it he assumed that the purchaser expends his money for an article for which he does not get value to say what is and what is not needful to for the citizen, what he shall buy and wha he shall not buy? Is the government a guardian and are the people all warde? Shali we have furnished to us by the legis lature a schedule of articles with fixed prices, coupled with a mandstory clause saying, "This you need and this you do not need"? Every housekeeper in the land with a reasonable amount of money has daily npon his table something which he might dispense with, viewed from a narrow utiliterian point, he does not need. Shail government interfere and cut off the extravegance? Every man of decency has some article of wearing apparel which in the same narrow and ascetic cense, did not amount to the value given when he bought | Drugs, it. Shall the government take cognizance of the improvidence? I repeat that the mere sale of liquor in in no sense evil or perniclous. To get to the evil one must jump over the saie, omit the use and lodge on the abuse. But the logic which can find the evil in the saie because it abounds in the abuse, will surely not stop, in Ite wanderinge at liquor. It should include the sale of morphine, because the purchaser may somatimes abuse Its pailistive use and become an opinm eater. It should include areenic, because the purchaser, using it for cutaneous eruptions, might finally poison his whole system. It should include pork, because the purchaser desiring to give himself a vigorous muscular development, might est too much and take dyspepsia. It should include tea, coffee and tobacco, for similar, but more ovious reacons.

METHODS BY WHICH ARTISTIC THE-ATER PICTURES ARE MADE.

Amount of "Paper" Required by a First Class Company-Drawlug on the Blocks and Culting Out the Designs-Lithograph Department.

The average theater man growls at the show printing charges and swears at it, but he cannot help bluself. The printing for n show on the road costs so much. No respectable company, or pretentlous outlit, can approach a theatrical show printing place for less than from $300 to $600 down. That money must be put up. That covers the blocks alone and the artists' services. The blocks alone and the artists' services. The Shakespears consoles blocks for n big forty sheet poster cost not My heart with true 1 hilosophies; n baim less than $600. There are forty pine blocks; if they are all in one color it is not so much trouble, but if there are four colors, as there often are on a big show stand, it means 100 blocks, each cut with mathematical nicety and each to be put away on the printer's "slanding galley," and kept. The printer tries to get his money in advance for the making of these blocks. They are of no ase to him after the original party has them. Therefore he figures to get the first cost of blocks, engraving and storago down, and he 1. Hen realy to treat for time on the balance that is, paper, press work and profit.

A tirst-class theatrical company starting on the road takes from $1,000 to $3,000 worth of "paper." These are inside figures, so far as tocal tigures go. Great combinations from than that, but within the year we have seen vity poor New York attractions fairly scattering their paper between New York and Chicago, at a cost of not less than $3,000 money, for it does no good. The show printing of the country lms load its greatest lmpetus from Barmun and the rest of the circus men. One thing must be said of Barnum, he believes always in printer's luk. He believes in it so much that be buys his own presses and his own ink for ordinary work because he wants so much of it. For the great engravings he, of course, employs proper talent. There is one a lat now in his employ who can ent a three sheet poster in two colors in one hour. It will not be a limphael or a Correggio, but It will look like something when he has finished it.

DRAWING AND DESIGNING. Wooden blocks for theatrical printing are first drawn on the wood and then "cut around." The blocks are soft pine, perfectly dry, and are held like a vise when the man and less graver are digging but the pleture, not so much art to cut on pine as It does to ' sign. The man competent to take a seen and of a play and fix up deadwall matt rean in any first-class printing es tablishment command $50 n week. His chief skill comes in the drawing and designing of blocks, so that after he has a dozen or more made they shall result in a striking picture. His assistants receive from $30 to $22 a week. They are the "board cutters," as they are

The first block holds the drawing and makes the picture. The other blocks simply fill in the coloring. Thus n block or combination of blocks when made will print a complete picture, but it will all be in black. The coloring—red, blue yellow, green, etc.—is done by another series of blocks. Most of theatrical fancy printing is in four volors or combinations of colors. The liest, or "key block," as it is called, costs $1.35 for the board, $5 for the designing or drawing the picture or part of a picture, and $4.00 for engraving. These blocks, therefore, cost about $11 each before the ink roller goes on them. Most of the "blg stand work," as it is called, comprises from twelve to tifty-four sheets, the general size for large picture work being forty sheets. At $11 each for the blocks it will be seen, therefore, that a forty sheet engraving on a dead wall representing two lighting rhinoceroses, or a herd of leopards, or Mylesna-Coppaleen jumping off the rocks, or a procession of elephants, means the expenditure of about $450 before a single sheet is rua through the press.

lint it is in the lithographing department of a big show printing house that the money is made, and wherein artists enru their fame, The best show work is now all done on stone. The first stone, like the key block, is the expensive one. The stone costs according to the time it is required to hold one picture. The designing and engraving are a little more expensive, but the printing, on the other hand, is a tride cheaper. As a rule the deadwall lithographs are not so large as the wood cuts, still they often ruwas large as thirty-two sheets un size. Several of the circus posters now visible on the fences will run to tint size, They co t about eight cents a sheet. The cost of a thirty-two sheet picture, askle from the cost of express charges, posting, etc., Is about

THE NEEDS OF A SCASON.

A first-class attraction other than a circus, which of course uses much more paper, will consume in a season about 560 thirty-twosheet, 500 eighteen-sheet and 500 twelve-sheet pictures. These they divide up and often make smaller stands, but that is about the quantity of lithograph paper they will use. Of wood engravings they run from 1,000 to 5,000 sheets, and in ordinary letter printing they run about the same. A recognized nttraction that employs that style of advertis ing will not expect to go on the road and finish the season without supplying the goats and the town seaveng r with about $0,000 worth of paste and paper, Very many of the show pictures of the better class are the work of excellent wrtists, The smaller lithographs, especially, are often meritorious and worthy of a better place in art than the bili poster's cart. There was one put out some time ago of Kate Castleton, us the little Quakeress, who used to sing "For Goodness Sake Don't Say I Told You." It was a full ligure cut, with the daintlest foot and ankle, and the whole was surrounded by a litographed frame representing pink plush and hard wood. That pleture is now on more private walk than it is on dead walfs, and the reason is that the picture was tasty, modest and artistle. Burnum has some single sheet lithographs which Illustrate the "key block" system. There are a variety of "single sheets," but all have the venerable showman's pleture on the key block. Sometimes they put in a flying trapeze with a woman in tights; sometimes a horrible skeleton, again a chariot, uguin a clown, again n hippopotamus, and again a lo. of wild Arabian chargers. These are all cata made from one thirty-two sheet poster stand and segregated for saloon windows. They are mostly done in four colors, but there again the printer "ulgs," for ho does four colors in three. Black is one, the foundation—the key block. Yellow is another, blue another, and red. With the combinations of blue, yellow and red, an expert printer can make half a score of effects.

Mr. Dow was nlways proud of the typographical appearance of The Waverly Magnzhie. He thought the name n good one for a paper, as it mulomitedly was. It was to keep up with the times is for manufacturers | not long before the paper began to be very profitable and there was the prospect of a fortune in lt. At this time Mr. Dow fistened to advice, and made an effort to improve its literary quality. He engaged an editor at $30 per week to take the editing off his own hands. This movement proved to be, financially, a fallure. This editor, who was an English gentleman of some talent and not n Ilttle experi nee lu journalism, began to reject communications right and left. The result was that the circulation of the paper fell off by bundreds. "I looked luto the matter," sald Mr. Dow, "and was soon convinced that Truly disastrons consequences have followed I could better pay my editor to stay away a slagular example of the freaks of fortune, and, perhaps, a not altogether encouraging :llustration of the prizes which come to men who eater to the reading taste of the public. Mr. Dow was originally an industrious and bard working printer. I made his sequalit-ance at this time. He was working in a printing office as a compositor. He was not so swift as younger men, his work was not constant, and he was able to make but $6 a week. This sum went further then than It does now, for those were not days of extravagance like the present, but it would not support a family. Mr. Dow dropped his composing stick and determined to make a strike for a living lu another direction. I met him one day in the street soon after. He had done nothing, and was poorer than ever. But he had then a scheme in his brain which he nnfolded to me, and asked my opinion of it.
